Covenant

Jack Vorrasi

St. John Fisher College

Follow this and additional works at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?

Recommended Citation

Available at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1970/iss1/8

This document is posted at https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1970/iss1/8 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
Covenant

Cover Page Footnote

This poem is available in The Angle: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1970/iss1/8
To Andy

When we met
   I was afraid;
You were life itself
   And no man deserved you.

I wanted you.
   You came with me
And we found ourselves
   In one another.

You told me
   You loved me too
And needed me
   The way I needed you.

No man will ever know you
   As I did;
Because I knew love
   Not through sense alone.

I know my life is you
   But I’m afraid.
I want the wrong things,
   Selfish things.

When my fear is dead
   Let me be wrong.
Keep me and hold me,
   But always love me.

Jim Reo

Vorrasi: Covenant

Covenant

This autumn memories don’t come easily
Rising from moist brown leaves, summer’s victims
Fallen. Wet, wet, this is a heavy time
Pressed close to earth with no breath of escape.
Autumns past the wind could raise these fallen leaves
And take them back to first born heights renewed
So crisp and vital seeming at the fall
That they could blaze from light in painless fires.
Oh that these hours should teach us now to rot
Making us one sod with the deep dark earth;
This cannot be the death we bargained for
Nor can it be our life, nor must our work.

John Vorrasi

Published by Fisher Digital Publications, 1970