But beneath the influence of my star I journey the narrow path of knight errantry, in which exercise I despise wealth, but not honor. I have redressed grievances, set right wrongs, punished insolences, conquered giants, and trampled down fiends. I am in love, only because knights errant are obliged to be so; and, being so, I am not one of those depraved lovers, but of the continent and platonic sort. I always direct my purposes to virtuous ends, and do good to all and ill to none.

—DON QUIXOTE
