Letter from the Editor

Dear Reader,

I would like to begin by expressing my gratitude in your choosing to read this edition of Verbum; you won't regret it. We have compiled for you a very rich collection of religious works by students, faculty, and alumni alike. Featured in this issue are poems, theological reflections, and professions of faith and love that I think you will find very enjoyable. This issue contains some very special and unique treats. We have included a chapter of a novel recently completed by Dr. Ambrosetti, essays from two professors of the philosophy department, the Religious Studies Department's Spring 2009 guest speaker's talk, and multiple writings from alumni. What you are about to read is truly an extraordinary collection of diverse writings from the larger St. John Fisher community.

I would like to personally thank all of our contributors, review boards, and compilers/editors. It takes a number of dedicated individuals to put together a work such as this. I would also like to encourage you, the reader, to submit something in the future. We have a number of categories and I am sure that you can find at least one that appeals to your writing style.

Thank you again to everyone who has made this possible.

Yours,
Peter Santandreu
