Letter from the Editor

Dear Reader,

Thank you for your interest in this semester's issue of Verbum. Just as Fisher has grown over the years, so has Verbum. It seems that every issue of Verbum brings forth a new variety of essays, poems, research papers and other works.

I would like to extend a special thank you to all the students, faculty and staff who have submitted their personal works for this Spring 2011 issue of Verbum. Every semester I am amazed at the range of subjects discussed in Verbum. From papers on various religious traditions to poetry, Verbum is truly a diverse journal that encompasses a variety of audiences. I know that you will enjoy reading it.

The publication of Verbum would not be possible without the support and assistance of review boards, compilers/editors and the REST Club's academic advisor, Father Michael Costanzo. The unending dedication and guidance of Father Costanzo to Verbum and the REST Club has sustained it. I would also like to thank the Office of Multicultural Affairs & Diversity, the Student Government Association and the countless other individuals and organizations who have donated prizes for the each submission categories.

As a senior, this is my last semester at Fisher. Although I look forward to the adventures that this next chapter of my life will bring, I am saddened to be leaving the Religious Studies department and, with it, Verbum. However, I have great confidence that Verbum will continue on and be a beacon of inspiration to this campus. I am grateful to have been a part of it.

I encourage you, as a reader, to submit a work for publication in a future issue of Verbum. We would love to include a writing of yours in the Fall 2011 issue. Verbum is an opportunity for you to showcase your work and share your ideas with others.

Yours truly,

Christina M. Regelsberger
REST Club President
Editor of Verbum
