We Sat Opposite Each Other...

Vicki Hasenauer
St. John Fisher College

Follow this and additional works at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?

Recommended Citation
Hasenauer, Vicki (1973) "We Sat Opposite Each Other...," The Angle: Vol. 1973 : Iss. 1 , Article 11. Available at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1973/iss1/11

This document is posted at https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1973/iss1/11 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
We Sat Opposite Each Other...

Abstract
In lieu of an abstract, below is the essay's first paragraph.

"We sat opposite each other, the old Maid and I. Her bony hands shook so she could not hold her one card steady. I stared at the chipped paper face of a dog as it wiggled in her grasp."

Cover Page Footnote

This prose is available in The Angle: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1973/iss1/11
We sat opposite each other, the old Maid and I. Her bony hands shook so she could not hold her one card steady. I stared at the chipped paper face of a dog as it wiggled in her grasp.

She peered intently at the two worn cards in my hand. She must be careful not to pick the wrong card. “Take your time,” I said softly, with the ironic impatience that is youth.

Her wrinkled, leatherlike face became (if indeed it were possible) even more lined as she smiled the half-toothed, half-gummed smile of the ancient. “I’ll not pick the wrong one,” she cackled.

I looked past her at an old china clock. It kept poor time, but even then she had been thinking for fifteen minutes. I wondered if the theories of “wise old age” and “do not act on impulse” would be proven true or false. It had been so awfully quiet that I started when she wheezed, “Ah ha! I’ve got it this time! I’ll take the one on the left.”

I smiled — she drew the “old maid”.

— Vickie Hasenauer