1997

In these Arms

Malcolm Payne
St. John Fisher College

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?
Follow this and additional works at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle
Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Payne, Malcolm (1997) "In these Arms," The Angle: Vol. 1998: Iss. 1, Article 11.
Available at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1998/iss1/11

This document is posted at http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1998/iss1/11 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
In these Arms

Cover Page Footnote
Appeared in the issue: October 1997.

This poem is available in The Angle: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1998/iss1/11
As the candles were lit, we suddenly sank into a dream world all of our own, our bodies connected, our souls sang out in a passion we'd never known.

Our spirits soared, our hearts became quick, our bodies instantly rhymed in sync!

As the intensity poured through every cell of our souls, I could feel our passion cry out for the communion of light that was ultimately calling us home.

We rested in peace and stirred with delight, - then once again we began, to let desire take command, flow through us and capture the night.

--Lin Morejuntas

In these arms I hold the most precious gem ever bestowed onto man. A gift directly from God's Grace. So vastly powerful it can change entire lives. Surely the omnipotent one knew the blessing he allowed in this gift of love. The proof lies in the actual acquisition of this attribute. The love that undoubtably must occur is the same love it takes to raise and care for this jewel. None more and certainly nothing less.

This delicate clay left in my arms to mold at times seems to melt like butter when I hold it close.

--Malcolm Payne

Payne: In these Arms

Published by Fisher Digital Publications, 1997