Growing Old Absurd

David White
St. John Fisher College

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?
Follow this and additional works at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle
Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2005/iss3/5

This document is posted at http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2005/iss3/5 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
Growing Old Absurd

Cover Page Footnote
"Faculty Award" Appeared in the issue: Volume 5, Issue 3, 2005.

This poem is available in The Angle: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2005/iss3/5
Dying more than growing, limbs useless, digits immobile, no feeling, breath constricted, no pain, mind active, lucid, as I lie dying, memory alone survives, and desire, desire to remember and that memory cohere.

I’d been living this terrific comedic poem all my life, only now with no one to hear and no way to write, perhaps you have had the same thought—you are not reading this poem, as I lie dying in my home-made hospice—living will, living well, living by proxy—who the fuck knows?

Even if this goes on a day or so no one will come round unless I call, which I won’t now that I’m warming to this death by dying. So long as memory cooperates, I’d rather go on my own, the perfect suicide, bound to be listed as paralytic asphyxiation.

See those toy soldiers? My life on parade. my fingers are useless now to move them, if I push them with a pencil I will only make a mess.

So the parade must rest the way it is, and when I am gone someone will take them away unaware of what they mean and how my memories cohere—but what’s the harm in that?