Driving At Night With The Lights Off

Graham Wilcox
St. John Fisher College

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?

Follow this and additional works at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Available at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2011/iss1/2

This document is posted at http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2011/iss1/2 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
Driving At Night With The Lights Off

Cover Page Footnote
"Second Prize Winner" Appeared in the issue: Volume 13, Issue 1, 2011.

This poem is available in The Angle: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2011/iss1/2
Driving at Night with the Lights Off

poem by Graham Wilcox

Suburban houses,
more husk than home,
flicker by in drooping rows.

An alarm bleats in protest.
Something about my lack of seatbelt,
I assume.

Should pay it heed,
cease that incessant whining
but on second thought,
it doesn't sound that concerned:
more formality than life-saving alert.

Eighty miles-an-hour leaves me little time to discern one moment from another or even this thought from the next.

I should be screaming
or stomping on the brake,
I suppose.

Anything but laughing, really.