1964

Lines

John J. Attinasi C.S.B.
St. John Fisher College

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?
Follow this and additional works at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Attinasi, John J. C.S.B. (1964) "Lines," The Angle: Vol. 1964: Iss. 1, Article 15.
Available at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1964/iss1/15

This document is posted at http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1964/iss1/15 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
Lines

Cover Page Footnote
Appeared in the issue: Volume 9, Spring, 1964.

This poem is available in The Angle: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1964/iss1/15 what do you do
when there's
all kinds of mystery
before you
the church \{many implications
and scripture \{here
other knowledge
and beauty and books and prayers
and all.
you've got to
write and work and read
and study and run
and laugh and eat and sleep and walk in the rain
and even watch tv and dust the shelves and everybody recommends books that you've got to read or perish and lectures and concerts and plays and they keep printing books and magazines and the newspapers come rolling to the door
with splash and scream
and sometimes subtlety
and always certainty
you try to grab at all and
your arms slip away
holding names maybe facts
but no insight
yet aren't changed
you're not better
your mind is maybe a little more tightly packed but your you is nearly the same.
the whole thing about these great mysteries
is that they're mysterious
and mighty too mysterious even for an enlightened mind you've got to look at them and respect them
and try to take away
a thimble of the ocean
and smell it and drink it
and taste it and
stop maybe
to pray
and hope that your brother in a way small or large has also savored a drop
and respects both
the drop and the sea
and maybe in some
mysterious communion
in some secret
ineffable touch
you and he will share
your sacraments
or in some wordless
contemplation will
come the soft smile
of reverence
and love

—jj attinasi csb