The Sand-Shell Beach

Eternal pounding of the waves
On the sand-shell beach;
Crest on crest, wave on wave
Pounding sand-shell beach.
As far as I can see — sea;
Waves rolling towards the shore;
Crest on crest, wave on wave
Does pound the sand-shell beach.
The roar, the mist, the spray,
The pounding waves all day;
Eternal rolling of the sea,
Crest on crest to sand-shell beach.
Lonely souls are drawn here.
The idle walk along the shore;
Walking, walking beside the waves
That pound the sand-shell beach.
Forever walking by the sea;
Idly walking along the shore
Where crest on crest on crest
Does pound the sand-shell beach.

—David Callahan

glory to God for starry nights and calm and rolling lakes and the plush of bows and oars and people

Metamorphosis

walking back alleys passing eyes—fear hope uncertainty(.)
And wearing a coarse tunic —people seeing and touching smelling sweating
Humanity

But don’t worry, You’re improved upon Off the streets behind walls—
Out of hearts behind abstractions (Y)ou’re catechisms and vigil lights and painted statues of a too old —young man sold at bazaars and stamped on four-color off-set for bedroom walls.

And on Sunday up the front steps as I see a figure out in the darkness-bound hand and foot with a rum-bottle Still in coarse tunic you lie there while we love You more hygienically...
