Honors Program Mission Statement

Effective and responsible intellectual leadership, on campus and post-graduation, begins with curiosity and knowledge in and beyond one's own field of mastery, requires the responsibility to encourage and support that curiosity in others, and relies upon a well-developed ability to speak with authority, fairness, and persuasiveness across different fields of study.

Through coursework and events, the Honors Program stresses challenging interdisciplinary work, so that students can understand their own majors within a larger context; research, so that students' intellectual curiosity can lead them to explore the strongest ideas and work of others; communication that is visual, textual, and verbal, so that students can share their knowledge and curiosity beyond the classroom; and community, within the Honors Program, St. John Fisher College, and beyond, so that students always know that their work has implications outside of the classroom.
