On Love

John E. Diehl
St. John Fisher College

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?
Follow this and additional works at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/verbum

Part of the Religion Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/verbum/vol9/iss1/7

This document is posted at http://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/verbum/vol9/iss1/7 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
On Love
Waking to darkness and senseless cold makes us recoil on the edge of our beds until we make our leap to swipe the snooze button on the radio--

Dumbstruck, the numbers flip to 5:12 a.m. on the red dial, and we curse under our breath, the ungodly beauty of our creased faces, hair stuck flat to our heads...

Downstairs, under the kitchen light, we meet: My daughter, head-bent, snatches a green apple and bites--tartness puckers her lips; she chews thoughtfully her eyes open wide and wider--watching me watch toast--the slice she’ll filch off my plate and I’ll be left with one, and a minute to talk to her...

She disappears before light fills the sky; and I’m in the doorway, moving backwards in her steps to stand again in the kitchen before the basket:

I pick the orange, and peel open its bumpy-side; let it blossom slowly.