as child i stood

as child i stood,
chin-high to polished sill.
parlordark stood round me,
hers hands mothersoft on my shoulders.

bed-ready i stood,
secure in footed sleepers.
my silver breath piled slow
from the window corner:
i told me strange and many things in lovely lettering
that only childhood could read.

and streetlight stood.
star-high to the windy elm.
white-jewel snow swirled round him and was as lovely in his light as his light was lovely because of her.

as child i stood,
and told me with my breath
"they must be loving"

THRENOYD

When sun shone young and grass was firey green and sky rang brilliant blue with singing birds when stars' first fires winked night's gentle caress and secret longing stirred a summer earth while barefoot through the sand all diamond white and running as the wind smiled through her hair the moon playing his tricks upon her face reflected in her eyes his stolen light it was that night I made my own true choice or thought the choice I made was my own true.
But now a few short years have turned me old and scream my madness in a new-found night no longer sweet with mystery but too clear to eyes haunted by dreams of crisp brown leaves.
