December 2013

A Rae of God's Son

Michael Costanzo
St. John Fisher College

Follow this and additional works at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/verbum

Part of the Religion Commons

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/verbum/vol11/iss1/4

This document is posted at https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/verbum/vol11/iss1/4 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
A Rae of God's Son
A Rae of God's Son

Rae was of the sun's court in splendor
She was bid to travel through the ellipse
  Share warmth and light and beauty

She left the splendid crown of light
And mused in her journey on what to do
  How best to fulfill her noble mission

She stumbled unaware on a dusty pebble
Dormant by the steps of a poor abode
  A boy came out and played with it

He kicked the pebble around for fun
  And whistled a song of simple joy
Rae jumped and fell on the bare ground

She picked herself up and slowly climbed
  The green tress of leaves to an iron rail
  Illumined with grace a lonely pansy

A girl walked to the airy balcony
  A melancholy look on her charming face
She firmly pinned the pansy on her long hair

Rae felt lost and sad at the end of the day
She saw her bright beam shorten and fade
  And disappear in the embrace of the sun

  Fully reborn in its glorious crown

Michael Costanzo