Birthday

there was a cake as there has always been candles and smiles wrapped with ribbons the old men shook my hand telling me how they once were a very long time ago while the children stared in quiet disbelief of tears on a birthday birthdays are like rainy sundays they just happen
I grew so tired of all the laughing kisses congratulating me for something I couldn’t change I thanked them all for they meant well and then reread your drug store card wondering where you were then.

Wurtz: Four

Four

I’ve been lying here waiting.
For the sun to flicker out.
For the clocks to run backwards.
Anything to change the way it has been.
The days close by go much slower than those did that are distant now.
I’ve kept track of the hours with empty cigarette packs that held twenty thin companions.
I’ve kept track of the days with unfilled envelopes covered with your address.
Much too small to hold your portion of that day’s thoughts.
I’ve kept track of the months with pencil marked calendar pages and the rainfall of leaves in the wind.
I’ve been lying here waiting for you to come home.
