The Movie

Our life is like a movie
With a boring storyline
And all the hours of each day
Are celluloid frames of time

Played out upon the screen
Is our birth, our life and death
And if you listen closely
You may remember all the rest

Bogey’s your father
    Brando’s your brother
    Cagney’s your uncle
    Crawford’s your mother

Lassitude of the mind
    Obesity of your body
    The movies are your window box
    To luxuriant society

So as the film starts
When you walk through the door
You’ll find all the best parts
Left on the cutting room floor
