I Was Born In A Moving Taxi

Troy Robinson

St. John Fisher College

Follow this and additional works at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?

Recommended Citation
Robinson, Troy (1989) "I Was Born In A Moving Taxi," The Angle: Vol. 1989 : Iss. 1 , Article 5. Available at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1989/iss1/5

This document is posted at https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1989/iss1/5 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
I Was Born In A Moving Taxi

Cover Page Footnote

This poem is available in The Angle: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol1989/iss1/5
A Few Questions To Consider:

What is a flying color?
If you make a cow laugh, will milk come out of its nose?
If a white cat crosses a black family, does the cat get bad luck?
If you hit a goldfish over the head, does it blink?
How many jars of peanut butter does it take to cover an average size pig?

John Falzone

SIEGFRIED'S DAY OFF

Moist roses amidst desert thorns
Blue night loving yellow day
Spider's artistry smoothly snaring sticky flies
Quiet breathing and vespersed phantasms
Mahagony striking shades of dandelion
Meadow minions of crooked crags
Wonderful_labrynth of pink concrete
Luminary shadows at summer Carnival
Gray shoelaces swooshing
Against factory floors
And the silent march of black ants along the wall
Gripping dinner in their jaws

Peter J. Duffy

I was born in a moving taxi

I was born in a moving taxi
under the drone of traffic and the light of neon signs.
An old Everly Brothers' song had been playing on the radio.
The voices of angels announcing the arrival of the Messiah were transmitted through the stratosphere.
The taxi—my manger.
The day's newsprint—my swaddling cloth.
My star was a stoplight.
The King of Jews was heard above the sounds of the city.
The city became quiet.
Rejoice.

Troy Robinson

I GOT GOLD EARRINGS

Before my grandmother died,
She gave everything away—
Everything that meant anything to her
Was ours to take.
When everything was gone,
Jewelry, clothes, pictures,
She sat alone in one of many new robes
And waited.

Karen Marie Benz