A Mother's Tool

Alexis Speck
St. John Fisher College

Follow this and additional works at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2002/iss2/12

This document is posted at https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2002/iss2/12 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
A Mother's Tool

This poem is available in The Angle: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2002/iss2/12
ALEXIS SPECK

A MOTHER'S TOOL

The sun so focused,
Rays splashing their faces,
Giving light.
    Brushing through hair,
Golden tangled twine,
The dark oak comb, pulling through the mess,
Stuck..
    Thoughts of yesterday,
Sit unmoved,
She can’t explain,
To the green eyed child,
    It takes time,
To untangle the unwanted,
With pain, mother’s tool pulls.

VALERIE STACKMAN

OLD HOUSE

Old, black, bruised bananas on the counter, aprons over the stove,
she ate peaches like apples and no one really knew her identity.

She was never glamorous,
but had a language that could put you on the turf, boxing.

Boxes and boxes full of lost things,
she was a hypocrite
who danced around her words.