L'Artiste

Elias Van Son
St. John Fisher College

Follow this and additional works at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2007/iss1/7

This document is posted at https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2007/iss1/7 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
L'Artiste

Cover Page Footnote
Appeared in the issue: Volume 7, Issue 1, 2006.

This poem is available in The Angle: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2007/iss1/7 Italian leather—
those cinnamon-skinned mothers who work in all those little stores because they refuse to go on welfare and their cabecita rizada daughters who wonder how I got such soft, straight hair—gather round as reggaeton blares from my little silver Nissan your poisoned gift.

Any day I expect you to flag us down get him the hell out of the passenger seat he’s black!
but then again
what in God’s name would you,
in your Christian Dior suits I never bothered to learn to press, be doing on the wrong end of Goodman Street?

\[1\] During the Gulf War of 1991, Dr. Emil Homerin of the University of Rochester stated that Arabs and Muslims “dwell in the slums of our mind.”

ELIAS VAN SON

L’ARTISTE

while i may spread my arms and smile, i wish and wait for more brilliant wings.
and l’Artiste pulled the sun from the morning sea,
but i slept while this was happening.
the sparrow’s songs still birth inside my mouth,
yet they find no voice with which to sing.
and i might share my mother's eyes,
but she sees jesus christ in everything.