The Angle

Volume 2007 | Issue 2

2006

The Line

Valentina Rose

St. John Fisher College

Follow this and additional works at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2007/iss2/10

This document is posted at https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2007/iss2/10 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
The Line

Cover Page Footnote

This poem is available in The Angle: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2007/iss2/10
That crack in the sidewalk is a barrier that I can cross so easily. Just the line in the way of me and the door. And to you, it is like a mountain, so you treat it carefully.

And you'll stay in the valley where you can breathe contently. While I am up here wondering what you're waiting for. That crack in the sidewalk is a barrier that I can cross so easily.

And I wait proudly at the top, then turn and look down at you gently. It is so simple and I think that I cannot wait anymore. And to you, it is like a mountain, so you treat it carefully.

Then I think that it is no use when you finally make it up here physically. Because not only will your legs be sore, That crack in the sidewalk is a barrier that I can cross so easily.

I am so eager to have you up here fully. But you don't see that I need you so much closer, so much more. And to you, it is like a mountain, so you treat it carefully.

We can be up here, together, happily-- And soon you will wonder why you contemplated all this for. That crack in the sidewalk is a barrier that I can cross so easily. And to you, it is like a mountain, so you treat it carefully.