He Crowded Her

Sarah Christy
St. John Fisher College

Follow this and additional works at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

How has open access to Fisher Digital Publications benefited you?

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2009/iss2/6

This document is posted at https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2009/iss2/6 and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at St. John Fisher College. For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjfc.edu.
He Crowded Her

Cover Page Footnote

This poem is available in The Angle: https://fisherpub.sjfc.edu/angle/vol2009/iss2/6
He crowded her
and sang her all those up-down songs he wrote on envelope backs and walls he could find sometime he had paper.
In light his blue eyes were a little green and she liked the irony so she would touch his arm invite him on Fridays to watch cable TV in her basement because otherwise he would sleep or smoke in his and she wanted his shirts to smell not like a bust.

His truck seats were torn and she drew out the stuffing in spots while he rapped on the wheel and threw his arms around and through and she slid to the window and looked over the side to count the lines because he smelled like smoke and his eyes were blue and he crowded her.